Rebate applications available

Rep. Bruce Smith said today that 1989 property tax/rent rebate applications are available at his district office.

The forms apply to total income received and property taxes or rent paid in 1989.

Eligible for the rebate program are persons age 65 or older, widows and widowers age 50 or older and permanently disabled persons age 18 and older. A participant's annual income from all sources cannot exceed $15,000.

The State Department of Revenue mails forms to individuals who have received rebates in the past.

Persons who qualify for the rebate automatically qualify for the inflation dividend cash grant. Inflation dividend checks are mailed in December.

The maximum rebate is $500 and the maximum inflation dividend is $125.

Those who submit their applications early are likely to receive rebates from the first mailing of checks in July.

Only one person per household is eligible for the program, which is funded by proceeds from the state lottery.

Smith's office is at 540-B Industrial Dr., Fairview Industrial Park, Lewisberry, Pa. 17339. The telephone number is 938-4988.

PO Box number no longer accepted

Rep. Bruce Smith said today that the Transportation Department's Bureau of Motor Vehicles has determined that a post office box number will no longer be accepted as a mailing address when applying for or receiving a driver's license or vehicle registration.

According to Smith, when the bureau sends out the renewal application, it is not including the necessary instruction. Therefore, motorists are continuing to use a post office box address, only to receive the returned application for lack of a sufficient motorist's address.

The 92nd District lawmaker illustrated with the following example: John Q. Public, 123 Any Street, P.O. Box 45, Anytown, PA 12345, or Anytown Bank, P.O. Box 50, Main St., Anytown, PA 12345.

These two examples demonstrate the proper way to fill out an address when applying or re-applying for a driver's license or vehicle registration, Smith said. Motorists must include a street address or rural delivery number on the application form.

Smith added that this new regulation also pertains to lienholders.

Scouts back from camp

On Friday, Feb. 9th, 29 scouts from Troop #38 Dillsburg, went to Camp Lavigne in Columbia County. The annual winter camp was to include more country skiing, but rain turned the trails to ice. The scouts lived up to the scout motto "be prepared" by having a backup plan, and when break fast cleanup was complete, they worked on various scouting skills. Later they drove to Ricketts Glen State Park where they ate lunch and then hiked the beautiful and challenging Falls Trail. The trail is several miles long and follows a creek up through the mountain along winding rock ledges. A storm had downed many trees along the trail so the scouts had to climb over downed trees as well as trying to keep their footing in places where the trail was covered with ice or water. After reaching the summit the scouts retraced their steps back to the bottom of the mountain.

Saturday night, the scouts prepared the traditional spaghetti dinner and then provided their own entertainment, before turning in to end a very full day. After breakfast and church Sunday, the Scouts returned to Dillsburg.

In March, the scouts will be visiting Washington D.C. and having dinner at the Chalet with the Dillsburg Lions. Currently, some scouts are working on Communications Merit Badge, and some are working on Emergency Preparedness. The newer scouts are learning the fundamentals of scouting.

Coroner's inquest

wipers were on in his 1985 Ford Crown Victoria, an unmarked police unit.

Fishel said he was on his way to the northbound lane of Route 15 to monitor traffic and run vascar, a speed check, just before the accident.

Fishel testified he was driving East on Glenwood Road. He stopped at the intersection of Glenwood and Route 15 "where he could see traffic." He was "waiting for the traffic to clear to go to the center to make a left hand turn, to go north." He said he was watching "both left and right."

Fishel testified, that just as he pulled out to head north, he "looked back to the left and saw a car coming." He immediately put on his brakes put the car in reverse.

The car lifted up its rear end and came towards him in an arc and hit him on the driver's side, he said.

Fishel said, "I did not see that car coming. I saw it at the last minute and tried to get out of way. I looked in both directions several times."

He told State Police he was, "at the stop sign for a significant period of time" and "was going to cross the south lanes, wait in center and go left or north."

Fishel told State Police, "If the Streett vehicle had stayed in it's lane it would of missed me."

Fishel was trapped in his cruiser, unable to call for assistance since his radio broke during the collision. He was able to get his seat belt off and tried to get out but couldn't. The fire company cut his door off and he was transported to Harrisburg Hospital. Fishel suffered multiple fractures.

Pennsylvania State Trooper Michael DalPezzo, a trained accident investigator, heard the call at one minute to 12:00. He arrived 12:25 p.m. at the scene from his barracks in York.

DelPezzo showed the jurers serveral pictures of the intersection, looking both north and south. He also showed them pictures of the accident itself showing the vehicles involved and how they landed following the crash. By the pictures, you could see that the Streett vehicle had it's low beams on. Straight on it struck the police cruiser, on the cruiser's wheel and driver's side.

The skid marks of the police cruiser showed that the car was 4'11" onto the highway when it crashed.

DalPezzo's investigation concluded that at impact, Fishel's cruiser was going 14.3 mph and the Streett's vehicle 64.7 mph. DalPezzo's calculated by the 37' skid mark made by Streett's Cadillac that he was going 70.8 mph before the slide.

Blood samples of Sgt. Fishel, taken at Harrisburg Hospital, the day of the accident, proved to be negative when tested for drugs and alcohol.

Three other accident reconstructionists testified that the Streett vehicle was going between 45 - 60 mph; 59 - 69 mph and 54 - 70 mph. They testified that Fishel was going 11 mph and 5-6 mph.

Dauphin County Chief Deputy Coroner Lee K. Rung testified that the children died of internal injuries. Injuries consistant with those caused by the compressing motion of a lap belt when the body is thrust forward. Both girls had their lap belts on.

A passing motorist headed north testified that she saw the police cruiser stopped at the stop sign moments before the accident.

The morning of the second of the hearing, the jurers were taken to the intersection of Glenwood Road and Route 15 in Dillsburg.

The unanimous decision of not guilty made by the coroner's inquest jury will be taken into consideration when the Attorney General's office decides whether or not to file charges of criminal homicide against Fishel.

Kitchen demolished in motor vehicle accident

By Dave March

Dillsburg Police charged 34-year-old Mike Keller of 1428 Mountain Road with driving under the influence of alcohol after he wrecked his pickup truck into a house at 2 Rocky Ridge Road last Saturday.

Police Chief Glenn Smith said Keller was southbbound on Mountain Road at 6:45 pm. when he lost control of his vehicle on a curve, struck a utility pole, and veered into the home of H. Wilber Rudy, landing in the kitchen.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudy were in their den at the time. "We heard a thud." Mr Rudy said. "That was when he hit the pole down by the neighbors." "Then we heard this awful explosion, we knew what it was," he added.

Mr. Rudy said that while his wife called 911 he went to check on the driver, who was not seriously injured, then cut off the power and water to the house. Rudy said his oak bar had completely disintegrated and had gotten back into the den just scant minutes before the crash. The desk was found on the other side of the room, along with the appliances. "We were fortunate," Mr Rudy sighed.

Rudy said he doesn't plan to put any more of a barrier up than the railroad ties that are presently there. "I want people said about parting sod tails with beams up," he said, "but I'm afraid your just going to kill somebody." "Last fall a guy ran in there and hit the railroad ties, but nobody was hurt."

MY DAZE

Third annual job fair

TELEVISION... Until that demon television came along, I was a calm, unperturbed lad, going my way, smiling at life's little jokes and busy being a father to my two small monsters...That was a little over a year ago. We have since obtained a television set, which has changed me into a regular Mr. Hyde...Pull up a chair while I tell you my troubles. It all began the day I saw the ad in the magazine. It read, "Don't be a schmo! Keep with the Jones' and get and the new 85 inch television set, made only by Bifocal Television Corp." "Remember," the ad went on, "only Bifocal has the new no squat, no squint, no picture tube!"

I believed the ad, and called the man to hurry right up to our house and deliver a set...Before I had hung the phone on its cradle, the door bell rang, and in came two men staggering under the weight of a monstrous box. This, albeit, was the Frankenstein I had purchased. While they twisted dials, and adjusted the set, the head man calmly informed me that everything was guaranteed for one year, and in case anything should go bad, to please call the office, and a smiling repair man would smilingly make his way to my door-within six months!

The set worked fine all that day. The following day everything went blank right in the middle of one of Arthur Godfrey's commercials, so I smilingly dialed the number of the Bifocal Tel. Co. A pleasant voice answered the phone, and after patiently listening to my troubles, she smilingly informed me that that the smiling repairman was out, and wouldn't be back till Thursday. He had gone bear hunting! She also told me to keep calm, and try to listen to the radio till they could get to us.

This was impossible, as we had thrown the antiquated radio out the day as we made our TV purchase. As my wife was partially hysterical on account of maybe missing Bride and Groom, I simply called another nearly serviceman, who came immediately... I learned later he had just graduated from a TV repair school, and was anxious to make good!

In a few hours my set was as good as new, and we had made satisfactory arrangements to finance the service charges. The picture was wonderful, except that we now had to stand on our hands to view it...Seems like the only way he could make it work was upside down!

After a few days of this yogi-like entertainment, my smiling bear hunter service man came around to call. He had forgotten his tools, but fortunately remembered to bring along his 30-30 gun which he used on the bear. Smiling Joe righted our picture, and made the 85 inch Bifocal perform like it never did before...only he stated nonchalantly that since we had let a non-Bifocal man touch our set, we had forfeited our guarantee...Ah, yes, but we were indeed in luck. He also told us that since he was in the neighborhood, we would not have to pay service charges-only parts. This came to only $45.63, and I was so happy, I could have danced around the room...In fact, I DID dance the room, but the smiling service man was too speedy for me to catch!

We have taken a second mortgage on our home, sold our car, and the children have no shoes-but we haven't missed a program now in three months... Lost my job-but have no time to work because of daytime TV... People don't come to call anymore-the house is always dark...BUT WE'VE GOT TELEVISION. Herb Harris February 18, 1953
